Restriction to one of the following inventions is required under 35 U.S.C. 121:

- I. Claims 1-10,18-20, and 22 drawn to isolated polynucleotides encoding a osmosensing histidine kinase and host cells comprising said products, classified in class 435, subclass 252.3.
- II. Claims 11-13, drawn to methods of assaying for the antifungal compounds utilizing said host cell, classification not possible. Applicant has not defined the structure of said compounds thus, classification which is based on the chemical structure of said compounds is not possible.
- III. Claim 14, drawn to antifungal compounds obtained by said assaying method, classification unknown. Applicant has not defined the structure of said compounds. Thus, classification which is based on the chemical structure of said compounds is not possible.
- IV. Claims 15-17, drawn to said histidine kinase, classified in class 435, subclass 194.
- V. Claims 21, drawn to a method of use of said polynucleotides in PCR methods, classified in class 435, subclass 6.

In addition to inventions listed as Groups I-V above each invention is independently directed to the following patentably distinct products of unrelated chemical structure and function:

- (a) SEQ ID NO:41 or DNA encoding it.
- (b) SEQ ID NO:55 or DNA encoding it.
- (c) SEQ ID NO:68 or DNA encoding it.

Applicant is advised to elect one invention from groups I-V and one invention from groups (a)-(c) simultaneously, in response to this office action.

The inventions are distinct, each from the other because of the following reasons:

The polynucleotide of Group I, the antifungal compounds of Group III and the polypeptides of Group IV are patentably distinct each from the other because each group is directed to products of unrelated chemical structure and function.

Inventions I and II (or V) are related as product and process of use. The inventions can be shown to be distinct if either or both of the following can be shown: (1) the process for using the product as claimed can be practiced with another materially different product or (2) the product as claimed can be used in a materially different process of using that product (MPEP § 806.05(h)). In the instant case the polynucleotides of Group I may be used in recombinant expression of said kinase which is a totally different method than those of Groups II and V.

Groups III and IV inventions are each unrelated to any of the methods of Groups II and V because none of said products are made or used by any of said methods.

The methods of Groups II and V are patentably distinct because each method has different steps and different end-points.

Because these inventions are distinct for the reasons given above and have acquired a separate status in the art as shown by their different classification, restriction for examination purposes as indicated is proper.

Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a request under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
